

Middle and High School

Housed in period architecture, PMCA's campus fosters a warm atmosphere for education. The Academy is accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools (MSA) and retains an active membership with Christian Schools International (CSI). All faculty members, of whom half hold advanced degrees, are committed Christians.

Middle School

Sensitive to these students' needs, PMCA has designed a program specifically for the middle school years. Classes in the middle school are discussion oriented and foster participation, build confidence and hone skills in discourse and reasoning. This takes place in an atmosphere of steadily increasing student responsibility.

When a student completes the middle school years at PMCA, he or she is ready to use his or her full body, heart and mind in the progressively more difficult and challenging years of high school. The middle school faculty meets to plan schedules, teach interdisciplinary units and coordinate other special activities.

Knowing that middle school students learn through experiences and social interaction, PMCA sponsors a program of co-curricular activities including field trips, drama, interscholastic athletics, choir, band and special event days.

The PMCA middle school curriculum includes all of the components of a sound liberal arts program. Core subjects include Bible, History, English, Math and Science. A range of special subjects involves study in fields such as the Arts, Health/Physical Education and Spanish. Study skills are intentionally taught within the established curriculum.

High School

PMCA's high school offers an atmosphere which stimulates learning and thinking under the Lordship of Christ. 98% of PMCA graduates attend a college or university. To prepare students for college and for life, rigorous academic study is required. High school students develop a sense of ownership and pride in their school as active participants in an academic life.
